

Breweries and Wineries

North Dakota's craft beer industry is quickly becoming legendary for its rich brews, robust flavors and its unique twist on traditional styles. With rich agricultural roots, North Dakota takes pride in being the nation's biggest barley producer, and having artisan brewers who take their craft seriously, because they are beer lovers just like you. You may be surprised to know that there is also an array of wineries across the state that offer signature North Dakota spirits and wines from locally grown grapes.

Here is a list of spots you won't want to miss throughout North Dakota!

Fargo-West Fargo Area

Fargo Brewing Company

610 University Drive N, Fargo

The Fargo Brewing Company brings handcrafted beers to the heartland. Brews include Stone's Throw Scottish Ale, Iron Horse Pale Ale, Wood Chipper India Pale Ale and Sodbuster Porter.

This packaging brewery is devoted to crafting a premium product from bushel to bottle. Fargo Brewing Company products are widely distributed across the state so it's easy to enjoy these delicious brews wherever you are!

Granite City Food & Brewery

1636 SW 42nd Street, Fargo

It all began with fresh-brewed beer and never stopped. From its made-from-scratch food, to its patented brewing process, Granite City serves up a fresh and unique dining experience. Brews include Broad Axe Stout, Brother Benedict's Bock, Duke of Wellington India Pale Ale and Northern Light Lager.

Maple River Winery

628 Front St, Casselton

The focus of this winery is to utilize North Dakota fruit in making traditional wines. A wide variety of fruit infused vodkas, cordials and brandy are offered year-round as well, including chokecherry, black currant, rhubarb and apricot, to name a few. The tasting room is open Monday through Saturday.

Red Trail Vineyard

3510 142nd Ave. SE, Buffalo

Nestled along the Buffalo Creek; the family vineyard takes its name from the rich history of the Old Red Trail. With six signature wines and a newly added winter wine, Red Trail Vineyard has expertly combined the fertile soils of the Red River Valley and traditional wine making techniques to elicit the subtle flavors and aromas of the native hybrid grapes.

Carrington
